

the risks

Spam is not just an inconvenience; it's a real risk that causes significant financial loss every day. Why? Spam is the primary means of transporting malware (viruses, worms, Trojan horses and spyware) and enabling phishing (techniques used to fraudulently obtain users' personal and financial information). Financial losses occur when IT resources must be redirected to recover from security breaches, when staff spend time deleting or managing spam, when networks and data are unavailable, when bandwidth is utilized to transmit spam and when financial data or identities are stolen.

spam facts

Industry analysts estimate that:

- Businesses without anti-spam solutions lose $4.1 million annually.
- By the year 2007, 50 billion spam messages will be transmitted each day.
